

Camp Infinity – Get Wet

Children will get an opportunity to enjoy the summer heat with these fun water games that enable them to get wet in a unique manner!

Centers can plan for any of the following activities.

Obstacle Course - Designate an area for the obstacle course and lay water balloons randomly all over the ground. Kids line up on one side and try to run from one side to the other without stepping on and breaking any balloons. Make area smaller and move balloons closer together, and try again. Keep decreasing the obstacle course area until the entire area is almost completely filled with balloons! To make it safe, you can have two children running the obstacle course at once.

Water Balloon Catch - Children get into pairs. Partners stand close facing each other and take turns throwing a water balloon back and forth, taking a step farther away each time. This keeps going until the water balloon bursts on one of them.

Rainy Relay- Have the children stand in line towards one end of the playground. Give each child a plastic cup filled completely with water. When teacher says GO!, the children have to walk across with the plastic cup held over their head. Whoever reaches the other end first, wins the game. Regardless of the winner, everyone would have gotten completely wet and had fun!

Water Guns- Children can have fun playing with these water guns. Allow children to take turns carefully aiming at each other and getting themselves drenched with this fun water activity!

Duck Duck Splash- Children will sit in a circle on the ground. One child will hold a cup of water and circle around the group. As the child circles the group, he/she will place one hand on each child's head and say duck. Then to one child alone, they will say splash and then pour the cup of water on their head! Now that child who gets splashed will circle the group.
